A widely held perception of accounting is that it’s the process of “bean counting.”
The public perceives accounting as a mechanical, black-or-white, right-or-wrong process.
Reality is that accounting plays a critical role in supporting a prosperous society.
This is the “Pathways Vision Model.”
Often it is said that …

Accounting is the language of business.
However, the public’s perception is narrow.

The public’s view of accounting following “black and white” rules, while essential, is only the grammar.
Rather...

A subtle aspect of accounting, like nuances in other languages, is that it both affects and is affected by the business reality and culture.

Federal regulators have warned banks to be careful about padding their profits with money set aside to cover bad loans. But some of the nation's biggest banks did more of it in the third quarter than earlier this year.

The banks justify the releases. They cite improvements in credit quality and economic conditions—which make it less necessary for them to hold large amounts of reserves as a cushion against loans that go sour—and they say they are following accounting rules that require them to release funds as losses ease.

A Bank of America spokesman said "the significant impact in credit quality we've seen in the last 12 months" has driven the reserve releases. J.P. Morgan, Wells Fargo and Citigroup all pointed to previous comments their top executives recently made indicating that reserve releases were merited because of factors like improving credit quality and the recent increase in housing prices.

But the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, which regulates nationally chartered banks and federal savings associations, is reiterating warnings to banks about overdoing it.

Big Banks Are Padding Profits With 'Reserve' Cash
As Revenue Slows, Some Banks Increasingly Use Loan-Loss Reserves to Boost Income

Federal regulators have warned banks to be careful about padding their profits with money set aside to cover bad loans. But some of the nation's biggest banks did more of it in the third quarter than earlier this year.

J.P. Morgan Chase & Co., Wells Fargo & Co., Bank of America Corp. and Citigroup Inc., the nation's largest banks by assets, tapped a total of $4.9 billion in loan-loss reserves in the third quarter, up by a third from both the second quarter and the year-ago quarter after adjustments. All the banks except Citigroup showed significant increases compared with the second quarter.

The banks justify the releases. They cite improvements in credit quality and economic conditions—which make it less necessary for them to hold large amounts of reserves as a cushion against loans that go sour—and they say they are following accounting rules that require them to release funds as losses ease.

A Bank of America spokesman said the significant impact in credit quality we've seen in the last 12 months has driven the reserve releases. J.P. Morgan, Wells Fargo and Citigroup all pointed to previous comments their top executives recently made indicating that reserve releases were limited because of factors like improving credit quality and the recent increase in housing prices.

But the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, which regulates nationally chartered banks and federal savings associations, is reiterating warnings to banks about overdoing it.

The vision accommodates diverse educational missions:

- All of the elements can be emphasized at various levels based on each school’s mission and students.
- The Vision Committee recommends the first course cover at least a general awareness of all of the elements and the ways they are connected.
